BASEBALL

Norway A. A. 3; Pine Tree A. A. 2.
Norway Athletic Association defeated the Pine Tree Athletic Association of Portland at the Fair Grounds July 8. The teams were evenly matched and played almost errorless baseball. Smith, Trafton and Van Volten were head liners with the stick and hit frequently for extra bases.

Both teams played closely and fast. Portland landed runners on first only in the first, second, sixth and ninth innings. Norway was a trifle more fortunate but only in the first, second, sixth and eighth could a player find the first sack.

Portland scored in the first inning when Smith landed on second from a long wallop and went home on a fielder's choice from Ward's bat. Their second run materialized in the sixth and brought about by Hutchins on a single into center and a passed ball. A good bid was made in the ninth to tie up matters but the rally fell down. With nobody gone, Ward made first on a neat single, Plavin sacrificed, but the runner was held from scoring while two batters were retired at first and Hunt fanned the last chance.

Norway made their first tally in the second inning. Van Volten opened with a three sacker and crossed the rubber as Trafton singled. Two more scores were won in the sixth as a result of Norton's error in judgment by walking Duncan and Dewhirst. Both scored on singles by Lynch and Van Volten. Trafton's two sacker was a signal for Van to stretch for another score, but was caught at the plate through the Thompson-Cady-Ward route.

Norway 3; Mechanic Falls 1.
Norway defeated Mechanic Falls at the fair grounds Saturday afternoon in a contest that was real baseball after the visitors recovered from the bad break experienced in the first inning. Hunt was a puzzle to Mechanic Falls and the team were unable to solve his delivery. Norway hit hard and landed on Bacon for ten with a total of fourteen. Errors were scattered but figured in the score making of both teams.

Norway opened the game in an unexpected manner and clinched the contest in their first inning. Four runs were scored in rapid succession and the visitors badly jolted. The opening was a series of heavy stick work. Shock troops could not have done better. Dillon led off with a single. Bacon was hit by Trafton; Duncan sacrificed; Bacon once more lost control and hit Van Volten; Lynch swatted a three bagger into left; Haggerty singled and LaFrance gained first on a third strike that hit the plate and bounded away from Tilton. Four runs were recorded from this three-run exhibition. Until the sixth, Norway held scoreless but with dangerous situations in every session. In this inning Dewhirst drew a complimentary ticket, he stole second, and crossed the rubber on Van Volten's single contribution into center. Three runs accumulated in the eighth. Bacon passed Van, Lynch hit sharply to Emery, who slipped up on the play and Trafton's two sacker sent the pair across. Trafton worked around and scored on a passed ball and this ended the run getting.

Mechanic Falls didn't draw any lucky numbers. Bacon was the first to register a hit or land safely on first, this was in the third inning. Not until the eighth could the Norway defenses be penetrated, for anything at all. With two gone, Westcott, who followed Tilton, followed with a single. In the confusion of rapid work Trafton made a wild throw behind second to Dewhirst at third and the two runners scored. Mechanic Falls landed a little flurry in the ninth when Stearns made a safe hit on a short fange resulting in a slip for Lynch. Lawler laid down a single but this bid for more runs was nipped as Jordan retired on three strikes and Emery fled into LaFrance. Bacon pitched steadily throughout the game after the last strike and held up well considering the array of heavy hitters facing him. He received good support with only a small number of misplays against the infield.

Hunt held Mechanic Falls to a single hit until the eighth inning when he covered base behind him. After that a little carelessness on the part of Norway and more determination shown by Mechanic Falls changed the complexion of events, and permitted the visitors to escape without a whitewash.

Oxford 8; Buckfield 1.
At Buckfield Saturday, July 10, the fast Oxford team defeated Buckfield, the rubber game of a three game series, both teams started with a determination to win, with Woodcock on the mound. The Buckfield team felt confident that they could hold the Oxford batsman in check, which only inspired the Oxford boys to start something in the first inning, which they did and never let up until the last man was out in the ninth hitting the ball hard for twelve hits and making perfect fielding impossible and allowing Woodcock to register out three strikeouts.

Delano, the Oxford twirler, was in superior form, having the Indian sign over his opponents every inning except the second when two errors and a hit allowed Buckfield their only run.

On Saturday a fast game the last six innings but eighteen batsmen faced Delano.

Gorham Ball Team Here Saturday

On account of Community Chautauque, the game will not start until the close of the afternoon performance between 3:30 and 4 o'clock. Use Fair street entrance, gates open at 3 o'clock.

The visitors are an easy rolling combination and will appear with a strong line-up. They have played many games and are seasoned veterans. Norway Athletic Association bunch are no bush whackers and will put their best team on the field to win if possible. Dopesters say the Clubs are closely matched and a sharp engagement will be necessary to decide the question.

Rooters are supporting the local team in regulation style and baseball fever is raging. A real team delivering standard goods is worth supporting, there fore every real sportsman should line up at the appointed time.

Dr. Fred Woods and wife and Mrs. Webster and daughter Eleanor, all of Portland, were guests Saturday of Mr. and Mrs. Z. L. Merchant.

Will Settle Road Question Saturday

An article in the warrant for the special town meeting Saturday July 17th, asking the Norway voters to discontinue a part of Beal street is creating a stir among the citizens.

Citizens behind this movement, or favorable to closing the highway have several good motives for the action. The best argument in favor, as they claim, is to release land for at least three building lots, thus adding taxable property to the assessors books, and relieve the town of expense in maintaining a road not absolutely necessary and little used in early spring.

This portion of Beal street from the junction of Tucker and Winter streets to Paris street was laid out and accepted in 1884 to accommodate the Norway Tannery. The proprietor, John L. Horne owned a large tract, and the road permitted an easy entrance for hauling and piling bark. It was also a short cut to South Paris when hauling freight.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cole were in Boston, Mass., the week of the 4th. While there they visited his brother, John, and endeavored to locate his uncle, John P. Bowmer of Quincy, but were unable to locate him.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. O'Neill of West street, Portland, were guests Wednesday of Mr. O'Neill's cousin, Mr. C. S. Tucker, on their way to their cottage at Lake Kezar, Lovell.

The Universalist Church was handsomely decorated for the afternoon service Sunday and among other contributions were twenty-three bouquets from Rose Hamlin who is an adept in arranging these decorations. She has a fine flower garden containing a wide variety which she delights in sharing. Next Sunday will be the last before the summer vacation of the Universalist Church. The service will give several selections on the violin.

Llewellyn D. Cummings
As a result of a shock following several weeks of failing health, L. D. Cummings, aged 67, familiarly known as "Bob" Cummings, passed away Friday night, July 9, at 11:30. He had made his home at Capt. W. W. Whitmarsh's, but as his condition grew serious, he went to the home of his sister, Mrs. A. Lovejoy. Another sister, Mrs. Adna Keene of Bristol, N. H., was with him during the last two weeks of his illness.

The deceased was born in Westbrook, March 15, 1853, the son of David B. and Mary Sweet Cummings. The family moved to Gray when he was a child, and he resided there some eighteen years before securing employment in Massachusetts. For a number of years he was brakeman on lines radiating from Boston, and frequently mentioned the fact that his crew was the first to take a passenger train into Union Station at Portland.

Llewellyn came to Norway about seventeen years ago and made shoes five years at the B. P. Spinnery & Co. During the past twelve years he had been janitor and general workman at the Norway Advertiser Office. "Bob" was faithful to his trust and quiet in disposition. He was famous for ready wit and made steadfast friends. He was a member of no fraternal orders and preferred the companionship of friends in the home or places of business.

Before leaving Gray, he married Fannie Libby of that town, she passed away in 1883, leaving three sons, who survive him. They are: Herman and Harry of Portland and Eugene of Portland. He also leaves two sisters, Mrs. Thirza Lovejoy, Norway, and Mrs. Eleanor Keene of Bristol, N. H. Two nieces survive, Charlotte Lovejoy, Norway, and Mrs. Harold Thayer of Bristol and a nephew, Roy Keene of Framingham, Mass.

Obedience a yearning to renew old acquaintances, Llewellyn spent the memorial day vacation in Gray and visited friends not seen in thirty-five years. He passed the month of the trip was, and last but one to his old home town, and the short visit would bring pleasure, yet leaves traces of sadness.

Services were held Monday afternoon at the home of his sister, Mrs. Lovejoy, Rev. M. J. Baltz of the Congregational Church officiating. The flowers were from and beautiful and bore testimony to the popularity of Llewellyn in the community. The remains were taken immediately after the services to Gray for burial.

Portland Evening Express says: "Jake Klain, the stocky little Colby College southerner, is pitching for the Dexter team. Klain's home is in Norway, and he is a native of the home club didn't sign up the 'native son.'"

Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Watkins and Mr. and Mrs. Weston Cole motored to Norway Sunday, July 11, bringing other friends, and spent the day with Mrs. Cole. A Brookline woman, Mrs. Angie Warren, Mrs. Ira Garland, Mrs. L. S. Boothby, Flossie Blake, and Ina Allen, all of Cornish.

Mr. and Mrs. John R. Nickerson and sons, Kenneth and Ernest of Dorchester, Mass., are visiting at the farm of their aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. W. Hobbs of North Norway.

Mrs. Leslie McAllister and two daughters, Margaret and Grace, have been passing a week in East Stoughton, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Perley Grover.

Voters of Norway, Attention!

Read the warrant for next Saturday town meeting. Certain parties for reasons (no one blames them for) want to discontinue a piece of road at the end of Beal street.

This roadway has been useful to the people of Norway since 1870; it was built to supply a need that obtains today same as when built.

This right has been paid for by the town, is the people's property and should be kept for the use of the people. There is no reason why it should be given away, which will be done if the article goes as proposed in warrant.

Voters, do not vote to give away the town's property.

Be there and protect your rights next Saturday, July 17th.

Wm. C. Leavitt.

President of Million Dollar Bank

The following is taken from the Nebraska Journal and is of local interest. At a meeting of the directors of the First National Bank of Omaha held Wednesday evening, it was voted to increase the capital stock of the bank from $500,000 to $1,000,000. In commenting on the action taken by the directors, President Burnham stated that this was in keeping with the past progressive policy of the bank to enlarge the banking facilities for a fast growing community, and provide larger banking powers to handle the increased industrial development that will be inaugurated upon the return of normal conditions.

Remarking upon the growth of the bank, Mr. Burnham recalled his first presidency of a bank in Lincoln in 1888, when he organized the American Exchange National bank with a capital of $500,000. At that time the State National Bank was purchased and in 1890 acquired the First National Bank at that time having a capital of $200,000. To provide additional office space for its constantly increasing business, the present building was erected in 1912. Two years ago it was found necessary to enlarge the banking rooms, and still further alterations are contemplated by the directors and officers to provide more space and better facilities for the operation of the bank's business.

The assets of the First National Bank, combined with the assets of its affiliated institutions, the First Savings Bank and the First Trust Company, aggregate $13,000,000.

S. B. Burnham, mentioned in the above item, was formerly a Norway boy, born at Summit Springs in Harrison. The family moved to Norway and lived on what is known as the Benj. Tucker farm for many years. Later his father moved to the village and was the first president of the Norway National Bank and very well known throughout the County.

S. B. Burnham attended school in Norway and Hebron, entered Dartmouth College in 1871, was a classmate and roommate of H. L. Horne, graduated in class of '74, after that studied law with H. M. Beare and upon admission to the bar became Mr. Beare's partner.

About 1880 he went west to Nebraska and settled in Lincoln. For some time he was a partner of Horace Oxnard formerly of this place, who followed Mr. Burnham west. Their business was real estate. After Mr. Oxnard's death, Mr. Burnham went into the Banking business and is now president and manager of a $1,000,000 National Bank, the largest in the State, west of Omaha.

Norway people know Doan's Kidney Pills—have used them—recommend them.

Here's a Norway resident's statement:

Mrs. Myrtle Payne, Main St., says: "A few years ago I was having pains across my back and kidneys. This annoyed me very much and on stooping or lifting, I felt the pains more. I found Doan's Kidney Pills good for this trouble."

As I used them, the pains gradually lessened and soon I was practically free from the trouble. I feel that Doan's Kidney Pills are entirely worthy of my recommendation."

KEEPING HENS FOR PROFIT Every flock of hens might well be divided into three classes as to the number of eggs they will lay, says O. M. Wilbur poultry specialist of the University of Maine agricultural extension service. Some hens will begin to lay in the fall and continue until late the next summer or fall. Others lay during the spring and summer months, and a third class lay only a few eggs in the spring months.

Some of each of these classes may be found in every flock. It is obvious that those which lay only a few eggs in the spring are unprofitable and should early be culled. The second class will, perhaps, pay enough to make a fair profit, but should not be kept after they have stopped laying in the summer. Those that lay until late into the fall are the real producers and should be retained as the best of the flock.

With eggs at 60 cents a dozen, a hen should lay approximately a 20% production, or 73 eggs in a year, to pay for her feed at present prices of grain. No poultry keeper can afford to buy feed for non-layers, and no poultryman need to, for there is a sure way to tell the consistent and profitable layers. The method of culling is simple, requires little time and is one that any person may readily apply.

Last year 79 public culling demonstrations were held in Maine, under auspices of Farm Bureaus and county agents. Twenty-seven farmers kept accurate account of their flocks for one week before and one week following the culling. In these 27 demonstrations 1990 birds were handled and culled, practically 25% of the hens were culled out of flocks because of their poor egg-producing qualifications.

In the week before the culling the 1990 hens laid an average of 700.48 eggs daily, or 35.2% of the 1494 birds left, laid one week following the culling 627.43 a day or 45%. The 496 culled birds laid only 77 eggs a day in that week. The estimated value of the feed alone by this culling was about $150.00.

Disposing of the non-layers or poor producers not only saves the feed, but gives the good bird more room and improves the quality of the flock.

Culling may be done at any time in the year, but the best time is in August or September. In culling the birds must be handled, and this is a good feature of the work. Most farmers do not handle their birds often enough to get acquainted with their good or poor qualities.

Culling should eliminate not only poor layers, persistent sitters and all old hens, but any crippled or birds with broken down abdomens, frozen toes, disease or poor vitality. Only the best should be kept over the winter, and they, of course, are the best for the breeding pens.

Culling demonstrations are being arranged for in August and September by the various Farm Bureaus in Maine in a state-wide campaign to eliminate the poor producers. Poultry raisers may profitably take the time to attend one or more of these demonstrations in their own communities.

HOW MANY TEASPOONS IN A POUND? Five cubic centimeters is what the Bureau of Standards has said as the theoretical quantity a teaspoon holds, but all spoons do not conform to this. The house-keeper measures with a teaspoon and should fill it "level" not "heaping."

How many teaspoons does a pound of baking powder contain? Apparently the number depends on yourself, and the spoon used, upon the brand of baking powder you buy, upon the can in which which you happen to get, and upon a few other factors which though seemingly inconsequential do enter into the problem.

A pound of baking powder lasts longer with some cooks than it does with others. In an endeavor to learn where the difference is made the experimental kitchen in the Office of Home Economics of the United States Department of Agriculture recently conducted a series of experiments.

Various types of cooking-teaspoons were first experimented with to determine the exact amount held in each case. Both the ordinary teaspoon and those measuring spoons which are linked together in sets were tested. A variation in the same pound can when different teaspoons were used.

The personal equation also enters into the amount which is called a teaspoonful. It was found the differences due to individual manipulation ranged from 10 per cent to 20 per cent, a wider range of variation than those due to the different capacities of the different teaspoons.

For a Cold or Cough to 8 parts cold water add 1 part each of BROWN'S RELIEF aromatic ammonia, glycerine, sugar. Dose: 1 teaspoonful every hour and 4 teaspoonfuls at bedtime. For a cough add more sugar to the above and use as needed. NORWAY MEDICINE COMPANY.

The James Smith Shoe Store

EZRA D. RIDLON

Somewhere about 1837-38 Ezra Davis Ridlon, a son of Daniel Ridlon of the town of Porter, and settled in Woodstock. He was accompanied by his sister, Emma (Ridlon) Haines, wife of Benjamin Haines, and her husband, who sat down family soon went down to Winslow, where they died. The mother of Ezra D. Ridlon was one Jemima Davis, daughter of Ezra Davis, who removed from Saco to Limington in the early days when the whole section was known as "Ossapee." He was a son of Daniel Ridlon and Patience Sand's daughter of Ephraim Sands, and a brother of the old Revolutionary soldier, Ephraim Ridlon, one of the most singularly quaint characters known within the Saco Valley. Daniel Ridlon was one of the first men to assist James Sullivan in the settlement of "Sullivan's Claim," now Limerick.

A block of lead plate bearing the name of Daniel Ridlon was plowed up on the bank of Little Ossipee River several years ago and is still preserved. This was originally nailed to a tree that marked the corner of his lot of land. An examination of the Registry of Deeds for York County shows that Daniel Ridlon sold and conveyed several tracts of land in Limington. He settled somewhere in the Western section of the town where he raised a family of ten children. Their names were as follows: Daniel, John, Ezra D., Priscilla, Jemima, Sally, Polly, Patience and Lydia. These all survived till maturity and were married. The posterity of Daniel and Jemima Ridlon may be numbered by hundreds today.

During their last days the town records show that this aged pair became dependent and were assisted by the town. Both lived to reach about 100 years. They died in Limerick but the location of the Ridlon farm has not been fully established; nor their place of burial known. Returning to the Woodstock family, fathered by Ezra D. Ridlon, we wish to learn more of them. Frequent letters forwarded to descendants have failed to produce any satisfactory replies. Certainly, "Uncle Ezra" and "Aunt Rebecca" were peaceable and respected people, known in the town and neighborhood for their quiet, old fashioned style of living and left behind them a reputation for truth and honesty. Why, then, should their descendants wish to withhold the history of their family?

For more than fifty years the writer has spent many hours and considerable money in travel to procure every item connected with the history and genealogy of his family and wishes to preserve a full and reliable genealogy and biography of all branches for the rising generations. He has crossed the Atlantic, North Sea, and the Baltic in search of his kindred and the collection of family records. The whole race bearing the surname in its variant forms of spelling was of pure Scandinavia origin and all of the American branches derived from the Oradian refugee, Magnus Redland, who settled in York, Maine (now) about 1714.

G. T. Ridlon, Sr., West Buxton, Me. P. S. We have the names and marriages of seven children of Ezra D. Ridlon and believe all were born in Limerick. All are supposed to be deceased but numerous descendants survive. The son Ezra died a few years ago advanced in life. Burial records of some of the daughters have recently been procured. Full records of the names, births, marriages and deaths of grandchildren have not been obtained.

INTERESTING HISTORY TO OXFORD COUNTY PEOPLE

Mrs. E. A. K. Grover of Norway who is scouring at Still River, Mass., again invites the readers of the Advertiser to take a look backward to sometime in the middle of the seventeenth century, when the first white men began to traverse the valley of the Nashaway Tribe which today is a beautiful farming country with orchards of large area.

There are many ponds of much beauty, which the tourist-haunted lakes of Europe cannot rival. One bears the name Unneocres, another Nunnacoguis, which means a dish. The houses were so substantially built that many are well preserved and some in part, which were built as the pioneers grew in number and prospered. Oak, chestnut and walnut lumber combined with stone and clay, made the material for building in those olden days; later bricks were made in several localities and there are many colonial brick mansions here and in adjoining towns, among them is the birthplace of the Wizard Luther Burbank, now of California.

The Houghton house is of pioneer fame, being a garrison house built in 1632, and has remained continuously in the Houghton family. Everywhere in the house of wood, pins of wood were used instead of nails, one had boards laid on diagonally for clapboards and these were pinned with little dovetail-like pins, all made by hand. Panes of glass were set in lead. In one house a few may be seen today. Stone was plenty and there are miles of stone walls, lasting monuments to their builders. A very interesting landmark is a high hill, which gives a glorious view of Nashaway (Nashua) river valley, the Indian name of which is Makamachekamecks.

In Winter from this hill can be seen the profiles of Wachusett, Watatic, Monadnock, Kidder, Peak Monadnock, Jo. English, the Uacanonocks and the Blue Hills south of Lake Winnepesaukee. Another hill is called Pumpsicut. It is very interesting to note how many of the Indian names have been preserved and how musical they sound to a true lover of nature, as Indian names are really a tribute to particular features that seem to give rise to them.

The first meeting house was built in 1732, the site of which was chosen in this way: the spot should be where two heaps of stones had been placed, which signified that the assembled voters had shown their preferences by stone ballots, each depositing a pebble where he wished the corner stone to be placed, a form used by ancient Greek assemblies.

Education was always a first consideration, and the schools have always been of high rank. We would say that this sketch relates to Still River and Harvard of which Still River is a part, but seemingly a little hamlet by itself.

One of the products of colonial architecture in Still River is the old garrison house which still stands, it is known as the Henry Willard house; as it was owned by him in pioneer days. The walls were lined with stones and mortar as a protection from arrows and bullets. The present occupants are descendants of Mr. Willard and of course many modern improvements have been introduced but the original shape has been preserved. It was built in 1687. Through the town there are many houses with the heavy colonades on the front porches, which lend a certain stately air to the houses they adorn.

One of the most interesting features to Maine people, and Oxford County especially, is the record of the "Waterford emigrants," and no name is more familiar than David McWain, who was the first to go to Waterford township in the then "Province of Maine," his only companion being his faithful dog. More soon followed and among them were Bryant, Farmer, Gerry, Hale, Houghton, Monroe, Whitney, Willard, Whitcomb and Hamlin. Oliver Hale carried his most valuable possession, which was a logging chain, over his shoulders.

Captain Eleazer Hamlin, whose homestead is adjacent to Still River, was the grandfather of our Governor Hannibal Hamlin. The Captain had a family of sixteen children, some of which bore the euphonious names of Europe, Asia, Africa, and America. Among them were Cyrus and Hannibal, twin sons. Cyrus was the father of our Governor and settled in Paris, Me., and all are familiar with the career of Hannibal Hamlin as United States senator and vice president. As Captain Hamlin was one of the original proprietors of the then, Waterford Township, his sons, Africa, America, Eleazer, Jr., and Hannibal, became prominent builders of that town.

The descendants of these citizens of Still River-Harvard are found in numerous places of honor and trust throughout our loved Pine Tree State.

Fruitlands, the home of Louisa Alcott, is private property, but is opened to visitors sometime in July. When we visit there, we shall "look" for the "shades" of the transcendentalists and will give impressions of the place later on.

Tires are often sold the same way politics are.

The last people to wake up to what they are getting are the people who pay the bills.

The bills are getting too big these days in both cases. And the man who is feeling it most with respect to tires is the man who owns a moderate-price car.

The idea that the small car owner doesn't need a good tire is rapidly going the way of all mistaken ideas.

He needs it more than anyone else. It's part of our job, as we view it, to see that he gets it.

Our tire service starts with good tires—U. S. Tires. All sizes made to a single standard of quality—none graded down to the price of the car they will go on.

U. S. perfected the first straight side automobile tire—the first pneumatic truck tire.

When we recommend and sell U. S. Tires we do so in the interest of greater tire economy. It is our experience that that is the best way to build up a sound and sizable business.

GREAT MUSICAL COMPANY COMING TO CHAUTAUQUA.

The title "Cremona" is indeed a fitting one for this splendid organization. Few know the significance of that name. Fewer still know that it is the name of a little old town in Italy where once upon a time, so many years ago, a little old man worked and struggled to make wonderful violins. Today those instruments made by that old man—Stradivarius—are priceless, and the word "Cremona" is used to designate the best and most beautiful in musical achievement.

And so we have on our program the Cremonas, one of the best musical organizations in the country. Eight great artists—five violinists, a cellist, a pianist and a soloist. When the company play, the sweet, joyous strains of the violin, the sonorous melancholy strains of the cello and the rippling purity of piano tones will lull you into the land of melody. Then, too, there are individual instrumental solos and beautiful vocal selections.

We are unable to tell you all about this feature of the Chautauqua, but we suggest this: "To enjoy the best in music and song hear the Cremonas at your Community Chautauqua."

BEACONS HERE—THIRD DAY.

A feature of the third day of our Community Chautauqua is the Beacon Concert Company—a surprising quartette of artists.

Mr. Roy Cropper is one of the finest tenors in Boston. He was the unusual boy soprano soloist at St. Paul's Cathedral of that city until his voice changed. Musicians and the press predict that he will become one of the greatest tenors of the country.

Miss Elsie Biron, violinist, is one of the few real lady virtuosos of today. The famous Bostonian Ladies' Orchestra engaged Miss Biron as concertmistress, and in the subsequent tours across the country she established an enviable record of successes.

Boston boasts of Miss Marguerite Porter as one of its leading sopranos. You will have to hear this charming young lady sing to fully appreciate the meaning of the word "exquisite."

Chester Cook, pianist, is numbered among the finest young musicians of the country. Many people call Mr. Cook the "poet of the piano," and that is, indeed, a good appellation.

You and I and our friends and neighbors will surely enjoy the Beacon Concert Company when they appear here on the third day.

SOUTH RUMFORD

Showery Evening

There were several showers in this vicinity Friday evening, July 9th, but the one which everyone enjoyed the most was the variety shower given Margaret Atwater by Blanche Wyman at the Wyman home on Hall Hill.

Miss Wyman invited a few of the girls to supper and while they were up stairs after supper, many of the neighbors quietly gathered. When Miss Atwater came down stairs to go home, she was much surprised to find over thirty seated in the living room waiting for her. A peanut hunt was proposed and Miss Atwater was the lucky one to find the prize which consisted of a set of pyrex, many pieces of cut glass, china and kitchen ware.

Refreshments of punch, cookies, and cake were served and the evening quickly passed with cards and games. The severe thunder shower kept many at home who had planned to attend.

Simply Worn Out

How Many Women Are Like This?

Can anything be more wearing for women than the ceaseless round of household duties? Oh! the monotony of it all—work and drudge; no time to be sick; tired, ailing, yet cannot stop. There comes a time when something "snaps" and they find themselves "simply worn out," and to make matters worse, have contracted serious feminine disorder which almost always follows the constant overtaxing of a woman's strength.

Then they should remember that there is no remedy like Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—the experience of these two women establishes that fact:

Cedar Rapids, Ia.—"After the birth of my last child I had such general pains that I could not do entirely for my household. I suffered for months and the doctor said that my trouble was organic ulcers and I would have to have an operation. That was an awful thing to me, with a young baby and four other children, so one day I thought of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and how it had helped me years before and I decided to try it again. I took five bottles of Vegetable Compound and used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash and since then I have been a well woman, able to take care of my house and family without any trouble or a day's pain. I am ready and thankful to swear by your medicine any time. I am forty-four years old and haven't had a day's illness of any kind for three years."—Mrs. H. Koenig, 617 Ellis Blvd., Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

Sandusky, Ohio.—"After the birth of my baby I had organic trouble. My doctor said it was caused by too heavy lifting and I would have to have an operation. I would not consent to an operation and let it go for over a year, having my sister do my work for me as I was not able to walk. One day my aunt came to see me and told me about your medicine—said it cured her of the same thing. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash and they have cured me. Now I do my own household, washing and ironing and sewing for my family and also do sewing for other people. I still take a bottle of Vegetable Compound every spring for a tonic. I recommend your medicine to others who have troubles similar to mine and you can use my letter if you wish."—Mrs. PAUL PARANRUB, 1322 Stone St., Sandusky, Ohio.

A. J. Plummer of Haverhill, Mass., spent a few days with his brother, Enfield, the past week, at the Plummer homestead. Some over fifty of the neighbors and friends turned out and gave Uncle Wm. Plummer a surprise party Monday evening, July 5, the 4th being his 82nd birthday; a pleasant evening was passed with singing, playing games, and a nice treat of cake and ice cream was served. The poem was composed and read by Mrs. H. D. Stone. She also brought a handsome birthday cake to Mr. Saunders, who enjoyed the whole affair as well as the youngest of us.

He had three ladies and two children with him. Warren Walker of Bridgton took them home.

The Castle Clock

By JOHN Y. LARNED

When Count Kerchoff died leaving no children his fortune passed to a distant connection who had never seen him or his abode. The young man who succeeded to the title and the property, Adolf Herzog, on receipt of notification of his relative's death, went to the Schloss and took up his abode there. He found Hans Schlottter, an old servant, in charge of the place, who showed him his domicile and gave him a minute account of everything in it, for Schlottter had been there ever since he was born and for many years had been the major domo.

"That clock," he said, referring to a timepiece some six feet in height and in breadth and thickness the size of a coffin for an adult, "has stood there ever since my grandfather's time. It has foretold the death of every count since the first, who was ennobled on account of his services in battle."

"What!" exclaimed the young man, with a shudder. "Foretold death! How did it do that?"

"I cannot tell you," replied the old man. "All I know is that two counts have died while I have lived here. One of them told my father that he was going to die, the clock having warned him of his approaching end. The other, who died a few weeks ago, told me the same thing with regard to himself. But there is nothing remarkable about this, for there is a tradition that the clock will foretell the death of the incumbent count till the Schloss is a ruin."

Count Adolf said nothing in reply to this information, but it affected him very sensibly. Soon after becoming domiciled in his new home he found himself constantly looking for some sign from the clock that could be interpreted as an indication that his end was near. It would seem rather that the clock should be looking for signs of its own decay, because it was very old while the count was young and healthy.

Count Adolf was betrothed when he acceded to the property to Bertha von Holwig, whom he married soon after his accession and took her there to live. Not wishing that she should be aware of his uncomfortable feelings occasioned by the tradition he said nothing to her about it. But it was not long before the young countess saw that something unpleasant was affecting her husband, and in time she surmised that it was the clock. For she noticed that her husband was often wakeful, and whenever that occurred he told her he wished it would not tick so loud.

One night when Count Adolf was not feeling well, after he had gone to sleep his wife arose, slipped downstairs and stopped the pendulum. Then she went back to bed. The reason she did this was that she feared if her husband awoke and heard the ticking he would be annoyed by it. In the middle of the night the count awoke, feverish and in pain.

Immediately he noticed that the clock was silent. He had been in a normal condition he would doubtless have thought it had run down, though it had never been known to run down, for Hans Schlottter attended to its winding and had done so for half a century. He boasted that in all these years he had never permitted it to run down but once, though he admitted that this had occurred shortly before Count Kerchoff's death.

Unfortunately the old man had told this to his young master. Therefore when Count Adolf awoke feeling ill and did not hear the ticking of the clock he at once inferred that its ceasing presaged his death. Having always concealed what troubled him from his wife, fearing that she would conceive a contempt for him on account of it, he did not now reveal it to her. But he awoke her and told her that he feared he was going to die.

The countess at once awoke the servants and sent for a doctor, who found the count in a state of collapse. He could not tell what was the matter with his patient, for all his organs seemed to be in fairly good working order. The count's nerves were evidently affected, so, not knowing what else to do, the doctor gave him a sedative, which put him to sleep.

A daughter of Hans Schlottter, going downstairs after having carried up a kettle of hot water for her invalid, noticed that the old clock had stopped. Supposing that her father had let it run down, she started the pendulum going; but, noticing that the weights still hung high, she refrained from winding it. When the count awoke Hans was standing by his bed. The invalid, hearing the clock ticking, asked Hans if he was aware that the clock had stopped during the night. Hans said he was not.

"It stopped to give me warning," replied the count, "and it has gone on again." Thereupon the poor man went off again into a nervous chill.

The countess coming in at this moment, Hans told her that her husband was about to die, for the clock in the hall always stopped when the count incumbent was approaching his end.

"Fool!" cried the countess. "I stopped it myself."

The count heard her and, sitting up in bed, said, "I am the fool."

The next morning the count was quite well again. It was the clock that was dead. The countess had chopped it into junk and kindling wood.

AT THIS SEASON

LOSS OF APPETITE

Is very common. In many cases it is due to impure blood, which cannot give the digestive organs the stimulus necessary for the proper performance of their functions.

Thousands know by experience that Hood's Sarsaparilla restores appetite and would advise you to give it a trial this season. It originated in the successful prescription of a famous physician. Get it today.

Take Hood's Pills if you happen to need a laxative—they don't gripe.

Charlotte Douglas of Bryants Pond has been spending a week at W. T. Thurston's.

Fannie Hersey of North Waterford is working at H. P. Brown's.

Our method of selling securities is a little different. This is because our aim is different.

It is the Company's ambition to have its securities owned by the largest possible number of its customers.

So we employ a relatively large force of salesmen and call on the largest possible number of our customers, offering them an opportunity to share in the ownership and the earnings of Maine power.

Unlike the ordinary method of selling securities, our campaign is virtually continuous.

Doubtless for many years to come Central Maine Power Preferred will be sold by the Company. There may be considerable intervals between issues, but just as certainly as the coal shortage makes it profitable for us to develop power and just as certainly as people not served at present wish for light and power we shall issue our securities to finance the developments and extensions. These securities we hope to sell in the near future as we have in the past, very largely to our own customers.

If you are interested in developing Central Maine and if you believe that the earnings of Maine water power should be shared with the people who make the earnings possible, perhaps you too approve of our plan of stock selling.

Perhaps you also wish to share in the ownership. If so, why not send the coupon and learn more of the preferred stock?

"Where there's a will"

There's a way—for the widow and children. It may not be an easy way, but it is the easiest and best the husband and father can provide.

It is proof of his love and thoughtfulness. The no-will way is proof of carelessness or indifference. Yet the State distributes countless Estates every year for people who "never got around" to make a Will.

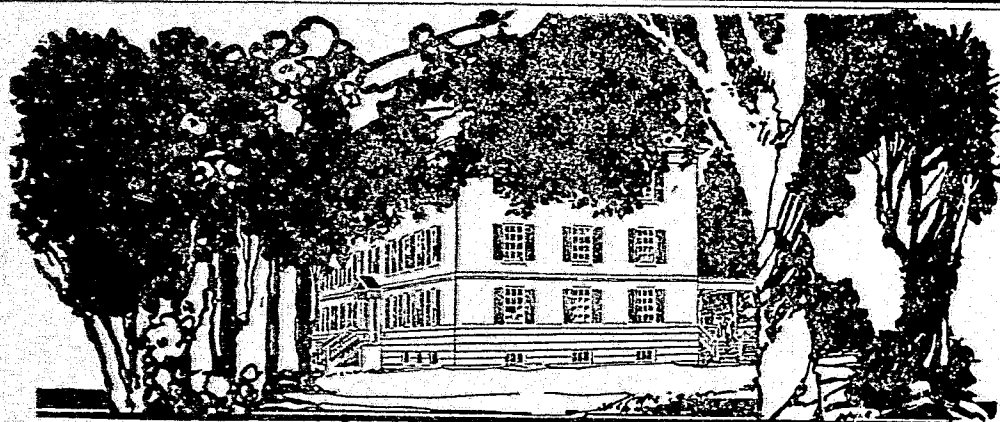

Will the State's way meet your needs? Investigate.

Celebration

Here in Albany we celebrated the 4th on the 5th. On account of weather conditions we changed our plans and turned to the church vestry for shelter. The dinner that was placed before us that day will linger for many a year in our minds, as a memorial to the cooking abilities of the women of Albany. After dinner Alta Cummings presented us with the last day exercises of her school.

Then came the games. Frank Cundall and Arthur Bean took prizes for climbing the greased pole. Potato races, sack races, and doughnut eating came next in order. Some of the younger generation showed a marked ability in the mastication of doughnuts.

The young ladies and married women participated in a sack race which all enjoyed. The barbarous instincts of the party was appealed to in a wrestling match in which Barker threw Osbourne, and a draw between Barker and MacDonald.

PORTLAND WOMAN WAS SURPRISED

Suffered Twenty Years From Indigestion—Tanlac Brings Entire Relief

"Just to show you the good Tanlac has done me, one of my neighbors said to me the other day: 'Mrs. Knowles, what are you taking?' I have never seen you look so well as you do now." Mrs. Mary Knowles, 164 Presumpscot street, Portland, Me., said while telling her experience with Tanlac to a special Tanlac representative a few days ago.

"For twenty years," continued Mrs. Knowles, "I had suffered with stomach trouble. I kept getting worse all the time and just before I started taking Tanlac I had such a bad attack of indigestion I thought I was going to die. My appetite was very poor and I finally got to where even the thought of anything to eat would nauseate me. I had a pain in the pit of my stomach nearly all the time, and after every meal I would be so stuffed-up I could hardly get my breath. My heart troubled me a great deal, at times I thought it would stop beating and then again it would flutter like it was flying all to pieces. I became very weak and run-down, my nerves were in bad condition and I did not sleep well at all. I would get up in the mornings feeling tired and worn out and often would have to go back to bed and give up trying to do my housework."

"I had just about given up hope of ever getting any better when I decided to try Tanlac, and I must say I was greatly surprised when I began to get so much better while taking the first bottle. Well, I continued taking it until now my stomach trouble has been completely overcome and I feel like a different person. I have a splendid appetite, eat just anything I want and everything agrees with me perfectly. I am entirely rid of the pains in my stomach and never have that stuffed-up, uncomfortable feeling after eating. I sleep well and always get up feeling strong and rested, and now it is actually a pleasure for me to do my housework. In fact, I feel just fine all the time and am as full of life and energy as when I was a girl. I praise Tanlac whenever I have an opportunity, and I feel that I can not say too much for it."

THE GRAND PROMOTER

He Pays a Debt in the Usual Way

By M. QUAD
Copyright, 1915, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

There was a man walking up and down the corridor on the floor on which the grand promoter had his office.

Back and forth—to and fro. Three times—five times—ten times. There were anxiety and desperation in his attitude.

A man does not jump off the Brooklyn bridge until he has given the matter a little thought.

He does not beard the tiger in his lair without making figures on his chances.

At last the walker resolved. He was the chirologist of room No. 8, and cutting out corns had not made a coward of him. He walked boldly to Major Crofoot's door and opened it. He had no gun on him, but he knew that his cane was just.

"Come in, Mr. Sykes—come in," called the major in a bland and cheery voice. "Come right in. By George, but what a coincidence—what a coincidence! Not a minute ago I saw you write to me a note asking you to step down here. There is surely such a thing as mental telepathy!"

"You have owed me $1 for the last four months," stifferly replied the chirologist, as he lugged out a bill.

"Just so—exactly—just so," smiled the major.

"And you said you'd pay me next day."

"I presume I did. Yes, I know I did, and I humbly apologize that it slipped my mind. My dear man, permit me to pay you $2—$3—$4—$5. I have a check here for $250. You may have me $245 balance, and I shall be perfectly satisfied."

"I haven't got no $245," replied the man, "and I don't want what is due me. I'll go to the bank with you."

"Don't! Don't do it! I'd never forgive myself for putting you to that trouble. Yes, I was about to write you a note. It was surely a curious thing your coming down as you did. Doctor, do you know where I stood financially four months ago?"

"Mighty hard up, I guess," was the sullen reply.

"You've hit it. Yes, sir; I was so hard up that I didn't own the shoes to my feet. It was the hardest kind of work for me to raise a dollar. The cold, cruel world sneered at me and called me a dolt. But there were a few exceptions. You were one. In my darkest hour you had confidence in me. When I wanted words of encouragement you spoke them."

"You told me not to despair."

"You said that the darkest hour was the first before the dawn."

"I never said any such thing," replied Mr. Sykes. "I was suspicious of you from the start."

"Mr. Sykes, the time has come when I can reward you a thousand fold."

"That's all right."

"I have just organized the great American Veal Tablet company, capital, $3,000,000. The stock will go to 200 above par. Dividends will be 50 per cent the first year. Greatest thing ever known in the history of the world. Will you take the secretaryship at a salary of $50,000 a year?"

"Not by a darn sight. You might as well give up trying to work a cold deck in on me. I want that dollar."

"And it was my genius and my financing which brought it about," said the major as he rubbed his hands and patted the chirologist on the shoulder.

"The thought came to me while I was eating a veal cutlet at my boarding house."

"Look here, now," exclaimed the chirologist as he pounded on the desk. "I've come for my dollar. Don't try to stuff me, but come down with the cash."

"I said $50,000 a year, but if that is not enough, if you feel that you ought to have $80,000, speak right up. I want you to be perfectly satisfied, you know. Will $80,000 a year be enough?"

"What about my dollar?"

"The tablets will be a go. They can't help but be. Let us walk out in the hall while I tell you that the public can't get enough of veal cutlets in their present form. They are always eager for more. They want the taste of cutlets in their mouths as they go about their daily routine. Fifteen cents a box in order to compete with potato lozenges, but a profit of 10 cents on every box. Take the sales at 10, 000,000 boxes a year and what do you get? You want stock. You want at least—"

"Not a blamed cent's worth! I want my dollar!"

"At least $20,000 worth of stock. You shall have it. You have paid me $1 to secure it, and don't worry. It will be made out in your name, and later on—Excuse me."

The major stepped into his inner office and shut the door.

"Look here, you old deadbeat! I want my dollar!" was shouted.

The major sat down at his desk and lighted the stub end of a cigar.

"You come out of there and pay your bill or I'll beat the door down!" shouted the creditor.

The major calmly puffed away and gazed out of the window, and the look on his face would have reminded a beholder of buckwheat cakes and molasses.

"Then I'll wait for you out here and punch your head! Do you hear me?"

The major did not hear. He was perfecting the organization of the Veal Cutlet Tablet company and wondering whether the Canadian general agency should be placed in Toronto or Quebec.

BATES—WEST PARIS

Mrs. Elsie Maine Farnum

Mrs. Elsie Maine Farnum passed away July 7th on her 87th birthday, at her late home on High street. She has been in failing health for several years, having had a stroke of paralysis which made her almost helpless for a number of years, but after a while she was able to walk about some. For the past year or so she has been afflicted with cancer, confining her to her bed during the last. She was a great sufferer and a good deal of care. All this time she has been tenderly cared for by her step-son, Frank S. Farnum, and his wife.

Mrs. Farnum was a native of Otisfield forty years ago when she married Sidney Farnum and came to Pleasant View Farm to live. She was a good woman and was liked by her neighbors and the people who met her in the home. She was a member of the Methodist Church, but not able to attend for a good many years. She is survived by several nieces and nephews beside the son mentioned above and his sister, Mrs. Abbie Hook of Portland.

The funeral was held at the home Friday forenoon. Rev. H. A. Markley attended. Interment in the Porter Cemetery.

A meeting in the interest of the State Public Health was held at the Baptist Church, Sunday evening. Myra V. Parker, a graduate nurse of some experience and now speaker for the State Public Bureau of Augusta addressed the audience. Her particular subject in the work is the venereal disease which is far too prevalent in our midst. She has a clear, commanding voice, yet sweet and appealing, that holds the complete attention of her audience. She has a moving picture film which is presented with her talk that we hope we may sometime have if we ever have the electric power brought to our village.

Ethel May Shorey Theatre Company has again visited us this week, Monday and Tuesday evenings. She always receives a full house. Her plays of which she is author, and are founded upon actual life, are always clean and highly entertaining. The one presented Tuesday evening entitled "The Game Called—Life" pictured the enticements to sin of the innocent country girls who go to the city and a good portrayal of the mean "high toad" tramp of the city.

Mrs. W. E. Cole and family are receiving a visit of a week from her uncle, Fred Libby, wife and son and friend, Miss Rowe, from Haverhill, Mass. They came in their auto.

Anna Houghton of Portland is spending two weeks with Mrs. Esther Tuell. Edward Bingham went to Portland on Friday to visit his grandmother, Mrs. Roscoe Winslow.

W. M. Whitten has returned to his business in Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. Leon Fuller from Massachusetts recently visited at his sister's, Mrs. E. D. Curtis. They, with their families and their sister, Mrs. Charles Baue and family went to Rumford Point to visit their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Fuller, where the other brother, Herman, met them and had the first family reunion since they began to leave home to care for themselves.

George Stone of Stearns Hill had the misfortune last Saturday to break his leg, a bad break, too, both bones.

He was in the woods getting some timber for building purposes and somehow a log rolled onto him. He was taken to the hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Jackson spent the entire week of the Maine centennial celebration in Portland.

Rev. I. S. MacDuff of Leominster, Mass., has been visiting Mrs. L. C. Bates.

Mrs. B. J. Mann entertained some of her elderly relatives and friends at their camp, "Idylwild" at Locke's Mills for a few days last week. Among them were Mrs. Cynthia Curtis, Mrs. Esther Tuell, Mrs. Adney Tuell, Mrs. Elvessa Depue, Mrs. Carrie French of Bethel and Anna Houghton of Portland.

The next regular meeting of the Grange will be Friday, July 23. It is hoped that there will be work to do.

Reckless driving nearly caused a general smash between Norway and South Paris, Sunday evening. A long procession of automobiles led by the Norway and South Paris bus was on its way to Norway and the Chautauqua grounds, after being held at the crossing several minutes by the passenger train from Portland. As the line got well underway, a driver in the rear of the string shot along the road and without a signal, cut at an angle directly in front of the bus heavily loaded with passengers. Only the quick work of Ted Young, the bus driver, saved a wreck. The long procession halted suddenly and numerous cars barely escaped serious bumps in the sudden stop.
